RETURN TO LEARN

UC San Diego COVID-19 Daily Dashboard

UC San Diego's Return to Learn program aims to prevent the spread of SARS-CoV-2 on campus and promote safety through three adaptive pillars that include reducing transmission, monitoring viral activity and public health interventions.

All students and employees, regardless of vaccination status, are required to complete a PCR test on the day of their return to campus (unless they have been COVID-19 positive within the last 90 days). We also strongly recommend testing no more than 48 hours before your arrival. See all COVID-19 testing options.

This dashboard provides data on UC San Diego students and campus employees (including general campus and Scripps Institution of Oceanography). It excludes employees from UC San Diego Health and UC San Diego Health Sciences, who are now monitored by UC San Diego Health. To see past dashboards with aggregate data, visit the UC San Diego COVID-19 Dashboard Archive. All data are provisional and subject to change.

Daily tests and confirmed unique positive cases through Tuesday, June 14, 2022

EDUCATIONAL UPDATES

CARLOS JENSEN, Ph.D., Associate Vice Chancellor for Educational Innovation

Fall classes

- A strong return to in-person instruction, though programs experimenting with hybrid instruction
  - Reminder: Up to 50% of instruction can be remote without an R-course designation

- 3% of undergraduate enrollments will be remote, up from a pre-pandemic normal of ~1%
  - These numbers may change as new students register

- Efforts being made to accommodate space/time preferences, but classroom space was (pre-pandemic) and continues to be at a premium on campus

- Fall will introduce a syllabus requirement, and reporting on commencement of academic activity
  - Remember, the Teaching+Learning Commons and ETS are here to help, if needed
WHAT IS COMMENCEMENT OF ACADEMIC ACTIVITY?

JIM RAWLINS, Associate Vice Chancellor of Enrollment Management

- As a higher education institution that receives federal student aid, UC San Diego must report the Commencement of Academic Activity (CAA) of students.

- Instructors must document that each student aid recipient began some type of academic activity in each course (for which students may receive financial aid).

- The Financial Aid and Scholarships Office provides ~$500 million in aid to our students each year, making this reporting important to students and UC San Diego.
Beginning in summer 2022, all instructors will be required to indicate whether or not students have started academic activity during the add period every term.

Instructors will have two methods of certifying CAA for their students:
- Manually certifying via the Academic Activity Tracking System (https://aats.ucsd.edu)
- Assigning a #FinAid assignment in Canvas
